The American Girl.

THE DIARY OF "MINNIE" AT SARATOGA SPRINGS.

From El. Perkins in the New York Graphic.

Monday.—Horribly cold. Arrived from Lake George, to-day. Looks like a bright—Wander if the Vaughns are here. Phew! had to walk through fifty men smoking on the balcony. Eight dresses—eight days. Know Virginia is dying to see them; such lace! Saw Bob Munson. Had same club-house smell as Fred. Walking wine-cellar. She kissed me in the hall twice. Pumped her about Dick. Didn't show in the parlor, to-night. Make a sensation at breakfast. Who is this Dick? Looks like a poke.

Tuesday.—Bob Munson's card before breakfast—the bore. Drink four glasses. Spooned with Bob on park seat; afraid it won't agree with me. I do believe he loves me. Said so. Squeezed my hand twice. The idiot. I'm too happy to live. Chops and codfish, Quaker style, for breakfast. Virginia called with Dick. Such a dress—gored and puffed and fluted, and the dear knows what! Just saw an old flame, Albert, dear Albert. Bowed gracefully. Mamma frowned. Oh, dear! Asked him to call. Spurred my horse a little. What did he mean? Virginia's mother very sick. Water was too much for me.

Wednesday.—Such an event has happened. Dick called. Glad Virginia left him with me. Such a lovely waltz with Bob. Why don't he cut his nails? Horrible! I like mine. After waltz, spooned with Dick. Dick says I'm too sweet to live. Perfectly atrocious. Dick and I think alike. He likes the moon, and I'm a fool. He's spoony, and so—well, I make him believe I am. If that mean, jealous Fanny Munson goes peering around again when Dick is holding my hand, I'll scalp her. No, I'm to be her bridesmaid.

Thursday.—Walked to the graveyard with Dick. Such a nice, sensible talk as we had. First, we talked about the soul—how destiny often binds two souls together by an invisible chain. Pshaw, what an old Muggins Bob Munson is! Then, we considered the mission of man and woman upon earth—how they ought to comfort each other in sickness and in health. If I looked like that fright who wore the blue dress I'd wear corsets. And then, Dick quite startled me by asking me if I ever cared for any one. Wore blue green and cut on the bias to-night. Told him, yes, for papa and mamma. Always did look lovely in green. Dick is a darling. "I mean, Minnie, could you love me?" The faint! Cut the Muggins flat.

Friday.—O dear! Role to the lake. Bob said, "I'm going to have a lemonade; what will you have?" Just as if I could say "cham; pague after that. Albert, dear Albert. Wore white muslin. Dick spooned again. "You look sweet enough to kiss." Mustache touched my face. Said he longed for a chance to talk with me alone. Knew the precious time had come, and Dick was just agoing to say it, when he came up with that dreadful old widower, Thompson. O dear! Water disagrees with me again. Must stop it.

"Come, Minnie, you go with Mr. Thompson. I want to introduce your young friend, Dick, to the Muggins." I look like a fright. Don't pay to my six-bottomed gloves to spoon in.

Dick flirted with Fanny Munson—the scarecrow! Wore Elizabeth ruffle four inches high. Did it to spite Fanny Munson. Where is Virginia? Saturday.—Dick proposed. Swell clothes did the business. I do love lavender gloves. Virginia is cut out, sure. Rang "Rock Me to Sleep." Fanny Munson said I had a cold. The meddling old wad! Lavender is my color. Engaged to Dick. Gosh, I'm half sick with love that fellow! He does kiss too sweet for anything. Must stop drinking the water. Saw the educated pig. He's a boor. Mother caught Dick kissing me. Told father. Stormed. Let out that we were engaged. "Then you'll go home to-morrow." O dear, my fun is all over. Must stop at the Point and take in the cadets once more. They can't flirt. Such goings! Dick goes with us, and Virginia—she's jilted! Ha! ha!

Gadding Farmers.

In variety, the various vegetables and fruits cultivated can hardly excel in number the different grades, sorts and kinds of farms distributed throughout our rural districts. Quite a number of kinds are represented in every neighborhood. The thrifty and slovenly farmer often live near each other; the systematic and half-lazy, the plodding and go-ahead, the old-fog and the enterprising, the ignorant and the intelligent, the hard-working, the lazy, the careful, stay-at-home and the traveling, gadding farmer, all can be found within the precincts of almost any town.

The kind to be depended upon all others is the gadding variety. This is the sort that "can't make farming pay," that complain of hard times and low prices, that are always in debt, that want to "go west" or when west want to go somewhere else. This class have a strong natural aversion to work, coupled with the pernicious habit of dropping their tools and leaving their work on any occasion, and for any and every reason that can be coaxed or forced into a plausible excuse for so doing.

For want of system and a little practical forethought much time is spent in unproductive travel about the farm. Often the entire time of one person is taken up in going from one point to another, looking after mislaid tools, or taking drink and luncheon which should have been carried with the workmen. Fences of course are poorly constructed by these men, and they must needs take long walks to look after them and the stock that are frequently breaking through.

Gadding farmers are always going to town. They never lack an errand. Three or more times a week they "day down the shovel and the hoe," harness the old mare, and go to the village, leaving work that is pressing to be done, and the workmen that always do better in the presence of the master, spending one fourth of a day or more on some trivial errand—"to see a man," to take a dozen eggs to market, to learn about a promised circus, to attend an auction, to learn about a petty law-suit, or perhaps to get a little tobacco and probably a drink of whiskey. Gadding farmers are always in a "useful hurry."

They have little time for reading or study, few papers, no books, but a large supply of weather almanacs, and very valuable receipts for making old hens lay, destroying the odor of skunks, to prevent dogs from leaving home, catching white mice, and inducing woodchucks to climb trees where they may be easily shot, and the like. Gadding farmers are always poor, but very wise. They know everything except how to work steadily, persistently, for a purpose, and with their whole heart. These men have a great deal of bad luck,—always just missing a "big thing," and are almost ready to do something wonderful. The evil influence of one gadding farmer in a community, especially upon the young sons of more neighborhood, making every boy un- easy and discontented, and every man anxious to "go into a store," a saloon, mill or trade, at last making them unhappy, unless they can go to all the excursions, me- nagories, circuses and horse races in the country.

We must not wonder that the boys do not want to stay on the farm, with such inducements as this style of farmers have to offer, and with such surroundings and influences.

USE RENNE'S PAIN KILLING MAGIC OIL.

"It Works Like a Charm."

One farmer hurt his knee with a pitch fork, and in spite of the best medical skill he died in less than two weeks with lock jaw. His neighbor farmer also hurt himself the same season, just as bad, and in about the same place, but he immediately commenced the use of Renne's Pain-Killing Magic Oil on, and in the wound, and lost only two or three days, and was soon well. We think the use of our Magic Oil would have saved the other man's life.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

Major Cornell has not purchased a new team of roan horses. We were fooled—Joe was only trying a team of roans.

The Croquet Club had a meeting on Saturday evening at the residence of Col. John McEntee on the Wehrberg.

Candidates for county official favors are beginning to shake hands around lovingly. Have you been seen, neighbor?

The nobly thing among horse men is now to drive their brutes with a harness made of flat straps, a la fifty years ago, and no breeching. For a single horse the style is as ugly as possible.

The Wurts street Methodist Sunday School on its picnic excursion to Cocksack August 6th, cleared about $110 above expenses, of which sum the Wilkney Mission got about $75.

James Joy has bought the house and lot formerly owned by J. Taylor Decker on Bowery street, for $4,200. He intends to make a number of improvements to the premises.

The good folks in the upper part of the city are making great calculation for attending camp meeting at New York. The trip on the Walkill Valley Railway will be a most enjoyable one.

A handsome team of roans owned by Hon. Wm. F. Scoresby of Ellenville were in this city last week. Wm. R. Smith, a well-known admirer of good horses, was with them. We understand the team is for sale.

Numbers of our business men leave the city in the Saturday evening train over the N. Y. & S. R. R. for the various pleasant resorts on the line of that road, where they spend the night and return by the Sunday afternoon train.

A hoodlum in upper Kingston amuses himself by going through the streets with a city-got hitherto known as "go-cart." The animal seems to be tractable, much more so than in many instances where boys, that need some "whollings," annoy dogs and goats in particular by futile attempts to make them draw in harness.

Coal Arrival.

Saturday 66 canal boats laden with 8,346 tons of coal reached this water at Edgewater through the Delaware & Hudson canal.

To Be Disbanded.

Adjutant General Rathbone has ordered the disbandment of the following regiments of the National Guard: 20th, Ulster Guard, 1st, New York, and 3d, Westchester County.

Early Fogs.

The steamboat captains report that the peculiar weather is productive of unusually early fogs. It is not customary to have any fogs on the river until September, but the temperature of the water in the morning has been lately quite frequently higher than the air.

Large Load.

The Mary Powell took a large load of passengers from New York on Saturday afternoon, and her landing consumed much more time than usual, which, together with a strong ebb tide and a head wind, made her somewhat behind her regular hour of arriving at this city. Her departure for this city and vicinity was an extraordinarily numerous one.

A Lot of Squirrels.

The waterworks people are growing wild over their gatekeepers, and squirrel as the folks hardly ever promote the streets. While a young lady from this city was walking up Main street, a few days ago, she was showered by a stream thrown by some enterprising merchant and had a valuable silk dress completely ruined.

Broken Nose.

On Friday afternoon one of the workmen, whose name we did not learn, employed by Mr. H. W. Otis to get out stone in O'Reilly's yards, struck his nose in the face by a fragment of a large stone which he had hit with a sledge-hammer, and sustained a fracture of the nasal bone. Our Local was given the surgical name of that bone, but got a cramp in the arm trying to write it and had to stop.

Explosion.

On Friday night, about 9:30 o'clock, an explosion took place at the Laffin & Rand Powder Works, in Riffon Glen, N.Y. While one of the double mills was being worked, no person was injured, and the cause of the explosion is one of those mysterious agencies by which powder works are hurled in the air, and of which a man engaged in such work is about as free to talk as a stone is to give milk.

Recorder's Court.

Jacob Wolbert was sent to the penitentiary for three months. Joseph Ringler, who was fined for stealing tickets and lumber from the new office Judge Lawton is erecting in Wilkney, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. He is an old offender, and has served out one term already in the same place of correction.

East River Bridge Contract.

The new or additional contract to furnish stone for the East River Bridge has been awarded to Messrs. Noone & Madden of this city. They will immediately enter upon the performance of their contract and will employ a very large number of men for quarrying. They offer special inducements, for which see their advertisement in another column. This firm is a credit to our city and county, as they are generally successful in their undertakings, notwithstanding they have usually to compete with hosts of contractors estimating and proposing for extensive contracts.

St. Mary's Temperance Society.

The Temperance Society has decided to parade in a body on Friday next through the principal streets of the lower end of this city in full regalia. They have engaged Goeller's full brass band, and will form in line on Holmes street and march down Wurts street to Abell, where the band will play and discourse patriotic and lively music at intervals during the day and accompany the society home in the evening. We hope that when the society parades again it will have the Temperance Band to cheer with some lively air.

Bad News from Home.

On Saturday last Prof. Doolittle, who is occupying the pulpit of the Rondout Presbyterian Church during the absence of Rev. Mr. Leiden, and with his wife making a temporary home at the residence of Mr. John R. Stiehlus, was disagreeably surprised at receiving a telegram from New Brunswick, N. J., informing him that his residence at that place had been entered by burglars and "ransacked." As much valuable property, including many articles possessing a greater value to their owner than represented by their intrinsic worth, was left in the house, and the letter was of course great. The telegram gave no information as to the real loss, and they will not be aware of the extent of the robbery until their arrival home, for which place they start this morning. They have the hearty sympathy of many friends here.

A Poughkeepsie Tragedy.

From Saturday's Press we learn the following particulars of a tragedy at Poughkeepsie: The drama was given shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon that a murder had been committed and several policemen and citizens were soon en route to the scene of the tragedy, located in the building on Main street, second door from the corner of Smith street, and occupied by John Wentz as a lager beer saloon.

The case was found as reported. In the cellar were discovered the bodies of Wentz and his wife, right in death, with faces and clothing besmeared with blood.

They were brought out under the direction of Coroner Hicks and laid in the yard, where they were viewed by a horror-stricken crowd. The woman had received her death wound from a ball which penetrated her neck on the left side, evidently severing the main artery. In the case of the man the fatal bullet had entered the mouth and passed through the brain.

Strange to say no one heard the report of the revolver, though a woman living over the basement where the tragedy occurred says she heard the parties quarrelling about half an hour before the discovery of their dead bodies.

The first one to learn of the deed was a fictitious son of the victims, who went into the room in search of his parents. He ran out in affright at the bloody spectacle and told the story.

It is the general belief that during a quarrel, in which Wentz and his wife frequently engaged, he first shot her and then killed himself. A revolver was found beside them with two chambers empty and two loaded. The mark of only one bullet on either body appeared.

Wentz was a man of intemperate habits. The deceased leave a family of seven children, four of whom we believe were Mrs. Wentz's by a former husband. One only lived home, the others being at work in this city and abroad.

The dead couple were somewhat advanced in years. An inquest will probably be held to-morrow.

No note was found to explain the act.

The Name of Palpit Point. Mr. Edmund Elling contributes to the New Palat Times the following:

"Among the old papers preserved by the town men was one from the year 1728, which controlled the affairs of the Patent, and of the New Palat, I met with the following very interesting and important document relative to the name of Palpit Point. It is also a certificate to the inhabitants of the town of New Palat, being desirous that the first station of their Patent, named Moggonck, might be kept in remembrance, did desire us—Joseph Hasbrouck, John Hasbrouck and Rosell Elting, Esqs., Justices of the Peace for the county of Ulster, to accompany any three or four persons, the Indian who brought us to the high mountain which he named Moggonck, or at near which hill is a small run of water and a swamp which we called Moggonck; and the said Indian Acrop affirms that he is the right Indian name of the said place.

CARD TO THE PUBLIC. James Wallace, a veteran of our late war, who lost his leg in the last great decisive struggle between the North and South at the battle of the Wilderness, May 6th, 1861, while fighting side by side with his father who carried the body of his father to his rear, there leaving it and returning to the front, where, amidst the three rain of shot and shell, after raising the flag of his country, which had been shot down three times, he fell, wounded and bleeding. He was then taken to the rear, where it was found necessary to amputate his leg. After his recovery he was honorably discharged from the army and pensioned by the government. Finding his pension insufficient to support his mother and sisters, and being desirous of going upon his stage, at the inducement of several managers he did so, and to the regret of his friends, he has since the most decided hint of the great and public recognition him the greatest curiosity in the world. Don't fail to see him and a host of other new stars.

An Act of Cruelty. Chopped hands and faces are the most serious annoyances that farmers, and people who labor much out of doors, experience from exposure. Exposed persons, especially children, repeatedly suffer intensely from cracks upon the hands, that often bleed. It is cruel to allow one's self or others to suffer in this way when the means of positive prevention are so easy to be had, and so cheaply, as to pay ten cents for a cake of Hand Sapolito. Hand Sapolito is not only better than the costliest soap for removing dirt, but it prevents chapping, and renders the skin soft and pliable. Sold everywhere.

Cure for Piles. Vincent's Magic pile remedy is the most perfect cure for Piles or itching Piles ever offered to the public. It is warranted to give relief to the worst cases in forty-eight hours after the commencement of its use, if the directions for its use are complied with. Price 50 cents per box. G. E. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

CITY NOTES.

Major Cornell has not purchased a new team of roan horses. We were fooled—Joe was only trying a team of roans.

The Croquet Club had a meeting on Saturday evening at the residence of Col. John McEntee on the Weiberg.

Candidates for county official favors are beginning to shake hands around lovingly. Have you been seen, neighbor?

The nobly thing about horse men is how they drive their brutes with a harness made of flat straps, a half year ago, and no harnessing. For a single horse the style is as ugly as possible.

The Wrist-Strut Methodist Sunday School on its picnic excursion to Coxsack, August 6th, cleared about $110 above expenses, of which sum the Wilkney Mission got about $75.

James Joy has bought the house and lot formerly owned by J. Taylor Decker on Bowery street, for $4,200. He intends to make a number of improvements to the premises.

The good folks in the upper part of the city are making great calculation for attending camp meetings in New York. The trip on the Walkill Valley Railway will be a most enjoyable one.

A handsome team of roans owned by Hon. Wm. F. Scoresby of Ellenville were in this city last week. Wm. B. Smith, a well-known admirer of good horses, was with them. We understand the team is for sale.

Numbers of our business men leave the city in the Saturday evening train over the N. Y. & E. S. R. for the various pleasant resorts on the line of that road, where they spend the night and return by the Sunday afternoon train.

A hoodlum in upper Kingston amuses himself by going through the streets with a hilly-goat hitched before a "go-cart." The animal seems to be tractable; much more so indeed than in many instances where boys, that need sound "whollopings," annoy dogs and goats in particular by futile attempts to make them draw in harness.

Coal Arrival.
Saturday 6th canal boats laden with 8,346 tons of coal reached tide water at Edenville through the Delaware and Hudson canal.

To Be Disbanded.
Adjutant General Rathbone has ordered the disbandment of the following regiments of the National Guard: 20th, Ulster Guard, 1st, New York, and 3d, Westchester County.

Early Fog.
The steamboat captains report that the peculiar weather is productive of unusually early fogs. It is not customary to have any fogs on the river until September, but the temperature of the water in the morning has been lately quite frequently higher than the air.

Large Load.
The Mary Powell took a large load of passengers from New York on Saturday afternoon, and her landings consumed more than the usual time, which, together with a strong ebb tide and a head wind, made her somewhat behind her regular hour of arriving at this city. Her detention for this city and vicinity was an extraordinarily numerous one.

A Lot of Squirrels.
The Pokeys people are growing wild over their water works, and squirrels so the folks hardy dare promenade the streets. While a young lady from this city was walking up Main street, a few days ago, she was showered by a stream thrown by some overhanging merchant and had a valuable silk dress completely ruined.

Broken Nose.
On Friday afternoon one of the workmen, whose name we did not learn, employed by Mr. H. W. Otis to get out stone in O'Reilly's woods, was struck on the face by a fragment of a large stone which he had hit with a sledge-hammer, and sustained a fracture of the nasal bone. Our Local was given the surgical name of that bone, but got a cramp in the arm trying to write it and had to stop.

Explosion.
On Friday night, about 9:30 o'clock, an explosion took place at the Luffin & Rand Powder Works, in Rifton Glen, by which one of the double mills was disabled. No person was injured, and the cause of the explosion is one of those mysterious agencies by which powder works are hurled in the air, and of which a man engaged in such work is about as free to talk as a stone is to give milk.

Recorder's Court.
Jacob Wolbert was sent to the penitentiary for three months. Joseph Ringwald, who was arrested for stealing pickets and lumber from the new office Judge Lawton is erecting in Wilkney, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. He is an old offender, and has served out one term already in the same place of correction.

East River Bridge Contract.
The new or additional contract to furnish stone for the East River Bridge has been awarded to Messrs. Noone & Madden of this city. They will be required to enter upon the performance of their contract and will employ a very large number of men for quarrying. They offer special inducements, for which see their advertisement in another column. This firm is a credit to our city and county, as they are generally successful in their undertakings, notwithstanding they have usually to compete with hosts of contractors in estimating and proposing for extensive contracts.

St. Mary's Temperance Society.
The Temperance Society has decided to parade in a body on Friday next through the principal streets of the lower end of this city in full regalia. They have engaged August 13th, and will form in line on Holmes street and march down Water street to Abbot, down Abbot to Division and up Division to the plemie, where the band will discourse patriotic and lively music at intervals during the day and accompany the society home in the evening. We hope that when the society parades again it will have the Temperance Band to cheer them with some lively airs.

Bad News from Home.
On Saturday last Prof. Doolittle, who is occupying the pulpit of the Rondout Presbyterian Church during the absence of Rev. Mr. Leidy, and with his wife making a tour to the home of the Professor and his lady, the St. Pauls, was disagreeably surprised at receiving a telegram from New Brunswick, N. J., informing him that his residence at that place had been entered by burglars and "ransacked." As much valuable property, including many articles possessing a greater value to the owner than represented by the sum, the property was left in the house, the anxiety of the Professor and his lady about the matter was of course great. The telegram gave no information as to the real loss, and they would not be aware of the extent of the robbery until their arrival home, for which place they start this morning. They have the hearty sympathy of many friends here.

Sail Ho!
A large schooner yacht, painted white, passed the mouth of the creek about 6 P. M. on Saturday, bound down the river. She was going like a racer under her main sails, jib and flying main and gaff-top-sails.

Personal.
Friend Hoar, the young attorney in the upper part of the city, has the handsome single horse road establishment to be seen in the county.

Mr. Robert Fluger, who was the chief engineer of the New York & Erie steamship, passed the mouth of the creek about 6 P. M. on Saturday, bound down the river. She was going like a racer under her main sails, jib and flying main and gaff-top-sails.

The deceased leave a family of seven children, four of whom we believe were Mrs. Wentz's former husband. One only liveth alone, the others being at work in this city and abroad.

The dead couple were somewhat advanced in years. An inquest will probably be held tomorrow.

No note was found to explain the act.

The Name of Palitz Point.
Mr. Edmund Ellings contributes to the New Palitz Point the following:

"Among the old papers preserved by the twelve men who from the year 1728 controlled the affairs of the Patent and Precinct of New Palitz, I met with the following very interesting and important document relative to the true Indian name of Palitz Point:

"This is to certify that the inhabitants of the town of New Palitz, being desirous that the first station of their Patent, named Moggonk, might be kept in remembrance, did desire Joseph Hasbrouck, John Hardenburgh and Rev. J. J. Ryan, Justices of the Peace for the county of Ulster, to accompany them there with Anepoc, the Indian who brought us to the high mountain which he named Moggonk, and the said Indian Anepoc affirms that he to be the right Indian name of the said place.

At the Opera House.
Commencing To-Night and continuing during the week will appear at the Opera House the California sensation, James Wallace, the great original and only one-legged song and dance man in the world.

Can you do this feat?
James Wallace, a veteran of our late war, who lost his leg in the last great decisive struggle between the North and South at the battle of the Wilderness, May 6th, 1864, while fighting side by side with his father who was killed. Regardless of all danger he carried the body of his father to the rear, where, amidst it and returning to the front, where, amidst the fire of his country, he and his father were shot down three times, he fell wounded and bleeding. He was then taken to the rear, where it was found necessary to amputate his leg. After his recovery he was honorably discharged from the army and pensioned by the government. Finding his pension insufficient to support his mother and his wife, he was determined of going upon the stage, at the inducement of several managers he did so, and to the astonishment of all, made one of the most decided hits on record, the press and public pronouncing him the greatest curiosity in the world. Don't fail to see him and a host of other new stars.

An Act of Cruelty.
Chopped hands and faces are the most serious annoyances that farmers, and people who labor much out of doors, experience from exposure. Exposed persons, especially children, repeatedly suffer intensely from cracks upon the hands, that often bleed. It is cruel in this way, when the means of prevention are so easy to be had, and so cheaply, as to pay ten cents for a cake of Hand Sap. Hand Sap is not only better than the costliest soap for removing dirt, but it prevents chapping, and renders the skin soft and pliable. Sold everywhere.

A Poulchkeepsie Tragedy.

From Saturday's Press we learn the following particulars of a tragedy at Poulchkeepsie: The alarm was given shortly before 6 o'clock this afternoon that a murder had been committed and several policemen and citizens were soon en route to the scene of the tragedy, located in the building on Main street, second door from the corner of Smith street, and occupied by John Wentz as a lager beer saloon.

The case was found as reported. In the cellar were discovered the bodies of Wentz and his wife, rigid in death, with faces and clothing besmeared with blood.

They were brought out under the direction of Coroner Hicks and laid in the yard, where they were viewed by a horror-stricken crowd. The woman had received her death wound from a ball which penetrated her on the left side, cutting severely the main artery.

In the case of the man the fatal bullet entered the mouth and passed through the brain.

Strange to say no one heard the report of the revolver, though a woman living over the basement where the tragedy occurred says she heard the parties quarrelling about half an hour before the discovery of their dead bodies.

The first one to learn of the death was a friend of the victims, who went into the room in search of his parents. He ran out in affright at the bloody spectacle and told the story.

It is the general belief that during a quarrel, in which Wentz and his wife frequently engaged, the first shot her and then killed himself. A revolver was found behind the door to two chambers empty and two loaded. The mark of only one bullet on either body appeared.

Wentz was a man of intemperate habits. The deceased leave a family of seven children, four of whom we believe were Mrs. Wentz's former husband. One only liveth alone, the others being at work in this city and abroad.

The dead couple were somewhat advanced in years. An inquest will probably be held tomorrow.
